

Personnel and Readiness Web Page Introduced

DoD recently announced the launching of "The Commander's Page," an Internet site providing current information on upcoming and current personnel, readiness, and quality of life issues, as well as initiatives designed for flag and general officers from all military services.

This Web site, designed to enhance communications between the office of the Under Secretary of Defense's office and senior leadership, provides timely DOD information on policies, legislative issues, personnel and readiness programs and deployment news, which can be promptly disseminated through chains of command.

The up-to-date information obtained from this site should provide command leadership the best and most accurate support possible for their military members and families.

The Commander's Page can be accessed at www.commanderspage.dod.mil.
