Years of Commissioned Service Requirement Waiverable

Selected Navy officers with prior enlisted service may now request retirement after eight years of commissioned service vice the previously obligated 10 years, according to a new waiver policy approved by the Secretary of the Navy.

The new policy, announced in an ALNAV 050/06, applies to officers with prior enlisted service in selected designators and will remain in affect through December 31, 2008. A list of those designators that are not eligible for waiver are listed in the message.

More information on the waiver policy is available on the Navy Personnel Command (NPC) Web page, www.npc.navy.mil.

Interested officers should visit the NPC site or contact their community manager for eligibility criteria and procedural guidance. In some cases, eligible officers may be contacted directly by their detailer or community manager to discuss options.
