

The Source for Navy News

Captain's Call

Scam Artists Look to Hook Sailors Through “Phishing” E-Mails on NKO

The Naval Education and Training Command (NETC) at Naval Air Station (NAS) Pensacola, Fla., is warning users of the Navy Knowledge Online (NKO) Web portal to be alert for an Internet phishing scam that is being directed at users of NKO. NETC officials are issuing an alert to inform NKO users of their potential vulnerability to this scheme.

The NKO scam was first identified in early December, in an attempt to exploit “multiple vulnerabilities” in Microsoft’s Internet Explorer Web browser.

If you believe you have been scammed, file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission at <http://www.ftc.gov> and then visit the FTC’s identify theft link listed above.

Further guidance and assistance is available from the Navy-Marine Corps Intranet (NMCI) help desk at 1-866-843-6624, and on the NKO home page at <https://www.nko.navy.mil>. For more news on the Naval Education and Training Command visit the NETC home page on Navy NewsStand at <http://www.news.navy.mil/cnet>.

For related news, visit the Naval Education and Training Command Navy NewsStand page at www.news.navy.mil/local/cnet/.