

Navy.mil web Site 'Shifts Colors'

The Navy's official Web site, Navy.mil, launched several enhancements, with improvements and upgrades that extend beyond its cosmetic appearance.

The new design features a modular layout, as well as increased interactivity and enhanced access to information within the site. The design is a refinement of the original Web page, which will give greater visibility to the news and information that people are looking for.

The key changes to the site, however, are the introduction of Navy.mil Underway, a low bandwidth version of the site suited for ships on deployment; and Navy.mil Mobile, which allows Sailors to access the site from a mobile device such as a cellular phone.

These additions will make it easier for Sailors to stay informed on what is going on around the fleet.

Navy.mil was recently recognized as a 2008 Webby Award "Official Honoree" and also received the Department of Defence Thomas Jefferson award for Web design.

To navigate Navy.mil Underway, visit www.navy.mil/underway/.

To navigate Navy.mil Mobile, visit www.navy.mil/m/ from your mobile phone or handheld device.