

CNO's

Navy Perspective on Joint Force Interdependence

Publication: National Defense University Press

Date: January 2015

Description: Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Greenert discusses the fiscal and security challenges facing all branches of the military in the coming decade and beyond. Greenert shares his thoughts on how to promote unity and efficiency in order to maximize capability through and between the armed services. CNO explains how DoD can streamline, innovate and use funds wisely in order to integrate and excel at warfighting.

Navigating Rough Seas

Publication: Military Officer

Date: July 2014

Description: Adm. Greenert discusses the impact of the Budget Control Act (BCA) on the fleet, the Navy's missions and future shipbuilding. CNO shares the proposed plan from the Joint Chiefs to slow military compensation growth with pay raise caps; changes to housing allowances and TRICARE fees, and increased sea pay. Greenert explains how savings from compensation reform will go into improving quality of work, including special and incentive pays for arduous and critical skill sets.

Forging a Global Network of Navies

Publication: Proceedings Magazine

Date: May 2014

Description: Adm. Greenert and Rear Adm. James M. Foggo III discuss how international maritime cooperation is necessary in an increasingly complex world that is interconnected through common interests such as commerce, global security and safety requiring a greater presence from responsible navies and a commitment by all partner nations to continue to communicate, exercise and exchange ideas to grow.

How the U.S. Can Maintain the Undersea Advantage

Publication: Defense One

Date: October 2013

Description: Adm. Greenert discusses how the increased presence and activity of commercial, scientific and foreign military players in the undersea domain are presenting challenges to the U.S. Navy's longstanding supremacy of the undersea, which require a comprehensive portfolio of warfare capabilities to overcome.

Adm. Greenert and Gen. Amos: A New Naval Era

Publication: Proceedings Magazine

Date: June 2013

Description: Adm. Greenert and Gen. James Amos discuss how the Navy-Marine Corps team will adapt to the emerging fiscal and security world to shape the future naval force.

Adm. Greenert and Gen. Welsh: Breaking the Kill Chain

Publication: Foreign Policy

Date: May 2013

Description: Adm. Greenert and Gen. Mark Welsh discuss the air-sea battle concept, breaking the kill chain in warfighting and examine how current budget constraints will affect this strategy.

Adm. Greenert: Wireless Cyberwar, The EM Spectrum, And The Changing Navy

Publication: AOL Defense

Date: April 2013

Description: Adm. Greenert talks about warfare in the EM-Cyber domains, the Navy's increased attention to these areas internally and externally, and how mastering these environments provides a warfighting edge.

CNO's Posture Statement FY 2014

Publication: Congressional Testimony

Date: April 2013

Description: Adm. Greenert weighs-in on the Department of the Navy's official posture statement before the Congress on the fiscal year 2014 DoD budget submission.

Imminent Domain

Publication: Proceedings Magazine

Date: December 2012

Description: Adm. Greenert discusses the increasing use of wireless EM emitting technology in our everyday lives as well as in warfighting capabilities. Mastering the EM-cyber environment plays a key role in readiness and military superiority.

Sea Change: The Navy pivots to Asia

Publication: Foreign Policy

Date: November 2012

Description: Adm. Greenert talks about the importance of the Asia-Pacific rebalance, how it will be accomplished, maintaining global naval support, and how the Navy will adapt to the challenges of operating within the modern age maritime environment.

CNO's Diversity Vision

Publication: Navy Personnel Command Website

Date: October 2012

Description: Adm. Greenert outlines how a diverse force contributes to readiness, makes our force stronger through the recruitment of a multitude of talent and how institutionalizing diversity will continue to improve the Navy organization.

Payloads over Platforms: Charting a New Course

Publication: Proceedings Magazine

Date: July 2012

Description: Adm. Greenert discusses the Navy's approach to maintaining current readiness in the unique demands of today's missions through changing modular weapons, sensors, and unmanned vehicle "payloads" which naval ships and aircraft carry or employ.

Building on a 200-Year Legacy

Publication: Naval History Magazine

Date: June 2012

Description: Adm. Greenert discusses how the lessons learned from the War of 1812 remain the basis for U.S. Navy operations in the 21st Century.

Sailing Into the 21st Century: Operating Forward, Strengthening Partnerships

Publication: Joint Force Quarterly

Date: April 2012

Description: Adm. Greenert discusses how he applies his key tenets toward the Navy's overall maritime strategy and breaks down the current status of the fleet, how history shaped the new strategy and challenges and opportunities he foresees for the Navy going into the future.

The CNO: At the Forefront of the New Defense Strategy

Publication: Seapower Magazine

Date: April 2012

Description: Adm. Greenert discusses the new defense strategy budget, the future fleet, the new deputy CNO and flag officer reductions.

CNO's Posture Statement FY 2013

Publication: Congressional Testimony

Date: March 2012

Description: Adm. Greenert weighs-in on the Department of the Navy's official posture statement before the Congress on the fiscal year 2013 DoD budget submission.

Air-Sea Battle: Promoting Stability in an Era of Uncertainty

Publication: The American Interest

Date: February 20, 2012

Description: Adm. Greenert and Gen. Norton Schwartz discuss how the new defense strategy incorporates Air Force and Navy personnel and resources to deter and combat emerging threats.

Navy 2025: Forward Warfighters

Publication: Proceedings Magazine

Date: December 2011

Description: Adm. Greenert discusses the Navy and its evolution over the next 10 to 15 years with a focus on partnerships, places, power and payloads.

